The Worship of Humanity. The "worship of humanity" has now in London a chapel, a priest, and a ritual. Its chapel is situated in a dingy street, and is a small room capable of containing a hundred persons. There are now about sixty worshipers in London belonging to the religion of Humanity, but even that number is an increase; for some years ago Professor Jowett, visiting them, said he found, there "three persons and no God." The "Festival of Holy Women" was celebrated in the day when Mr. Conway, who writes an interesting letter about it, was present, and the discourse of the Priest, Dr. Congreve, a scholarly, white haired man, pertained to eminent and holy women of the past—St. Monica, Beatrice, Heloise, Joan of Arc, and others. Smooth. The result was a life of philantropy and millions given in benefactions, concluding with the Lenox Institute. Alexander Stuart was a plain looking man, and to many his appearance was rather repulsive. He grew up in the sugar refinery, and remained devoted for it until he became an old man. He gave away a great deal of money, and was in this respect highly useful. His brother Robert married, but Alexander never followed the example. He bequeathed his entire estate to his brother, who is now the richest sugar refiner on this continent. Though an excellent

A man who is deficient in fine manaers is likely to commit many errors in dealing with others, whether they are his interiors or superiors in position, so cial standing or age. The mistake an inferior is likely to commit in dealing with his superior is to act as though he were the latter's equal, and the danger to which the superior is subject, in conversing with his inferior, is the danger to which the superior is subject, in conversing with his inferior, is the danger to asserting, or over-asserting, his superiority, instead of leaving it to the other to establish the fact by insensibly can commit either blunder. Rich Old Bachelers.

Considering the social nature of our race, and the great facilities offered these men for marriage, the question might be raised, why they remained in such a condition. They say, however, that old Peter Goelet felt too poor, and was alled a station a suppressed scream, when the pulse of the motion never stops and the impetus at times becomes almost terrible, what a sense of gratitude there ought to be toward those lonely men who, faithful to the end, turn this point and that, shift the lamps, keep watch and ward, and clear the way for the swift express? Those who have trusted themselves to this splendid power are utterly powerless. Their lives are in the hands of the men who drive the train, and of the signal men who watch. Yet there is no sleep in the signal-box or at the tundition. They say, however, that old the signal men who watch. New York weddings last year reached the number of 20,000. New York supports 145,749 males between the ages of 15 and 30 years, and 172,777 females between the same ages. About 30,000 of the latter are domestics. The New York police arrested last year 71,699 persons, 47,798 of whom were held, while 23,899 were discharged. Orimes of violence are on the increase.

—A provision broker of Chicago, in conversation with a New Yorker, speaking of the stagnation in business, said: "Why, it is a positive fact that there are less than two hundred thousand dressed hogs in Chicago to-day." The friend replied in astonishment; "Why, I thought your population something over half a million." —Boston Traveller.

Why is the inferred from this that beauty is only relative? Assuredly, to persons who are wanting in the sense of the beautiful; but, whatever logicians may ing the population to be 4,764,312 souls, has drawn out from Land, an English journal, some striking contrasts. "There are," it says, "in London more than double the number of people in Denmark, including Greenland, nearly three times as many as in Greece; more than eighteen times the population of Montenegro; some thousands more than Portugal, including the Azores and Madeira; nearly treble the population of Servia; more than double that of Bulgaria; three-quarters of a million more than in Holland; more than Sweden, or Norway, or Switzerland."

The United States and Europe. We number now nearly or quite 50,000,000 people. A hundred million could be sustained, without increasing the area of a single farm or adding one to their number, by merely bringing our product
up to the average standard of reasonably good agriculture; and then there might good agriculture; and then there might remain for export twice the quantify we now send abroad, to feed the hungry in foreign lands. No longer divided by the curse of slavery, this nation is now united by bonds of mutual interest of common speech, tied by the iron band of 85,000 miles of railway, and is yet only beginning to feel the vital power and grandeur of a truly national existence. 1000. The good land in Texas is equal in area to the good land in Germany and Great Britain. Kansas, Nebraaks and Iowa combined more than equal France in area and possess more fartile land. Only twenty-five years ago John Brown and his companions redeemed Kansas from slavery; Nebraska was then indicated on our own maps as a part of "the great American desert," and Iowa had scarcely become a State. Their population may now be 2,500,000. France has 47,000,000. A detailed comparison of the cost en-tailed by standing armies shows some very curious results, which the Constitutionnel gives in a compact form. Among the great Powers, England of course, stands pre-eminent for the extravagance of its expenditure, the annual cost of each man in the army being 3,500f or £140, while for the Indian army the cost per man is 1,500f, or about half. Next but at a long interval, comes Austria-Hunat a long interval, comes Austria-Hungary with an expenditure of about £51; then France and Germany, the latter of which countries spends just £43 per annum per man. The other two great Powers each spend a little less than Germany, but the difference is exceedingly many, but the difference is exceedingly small. Italy appears to pay just under £40 and Russia just over £38, which is, as will be observed, not very much more than a quarter of the expense required by the British seldier. On the other hand, a table showing the proportion of money spent on the army to the general expenditure of the countries tells a very different tale, and almost reverses the positions on the list of the several European Powers. It appears from the the positions on the list of the several European Powers. It appears from the calculation made by the Constitutionnel that there is paid toward the army in England and the colonies only 14 per cent of the budget, and this percentage is the same in the case of Italy. Austria-Hungary occupies the next place, with a proportion of 19 per cent, and next come the two rivals, France and Germany, with a similar total of 21 per cent, Russia bringing up the rear with an expension sia bringing up the rear with an expenditure of 29 per cent or double that of England.
